

I am a current T-Mobile cellular customer and am very happy with their unlimited, uncapped data services. A merger with AT&T would jeopardize these services by moving towards data caps and overage charges.

I believe that a lack of competition from fewer, larger carriers would result in less innovation and increased prices.

Both AT&T and T-Mobile are based on GSM technology. AT&T will have the lion's share of control over the GSM devices that make it to the U.S. market. I am a longtime T-Mobile/Android user, this level of control would also hurt the developing Android market as well.

Therefore, I strongly urge that this merger be disapproved.